How to use this handbook

The programmes are divided in two separate sections according to their level: Postgraduate and Undergraduate. Masters degree programmes are presented first.

Postgraduate certificates and diplomas can be found at the end of the Postgraduate section.

Foundation degrees, graduate certificates and diplomas can be found in the Undergraduate section.

Degree structure

All our masters degrees have a modular structure. To gain your degree, you must be awarded a minimum of 180 credits. Degree structures differ between programmes.

You may, where the option is available, choose to present a 30-credit report instead of a dissertation. In this case, you will also take a further 30-credit module in your subject area.

For non-masters programmes, the credit required to gain the award is noted in the top-right of the page.

Programmes are composed of Core and Recommended modules.

Core modules

Compulsory modules.

Recommended modules

Modules, often attached to other subject areas, which the programme leader has identified as supportive to a particular programme.

Application

Masters programmes, postgraduate and graduate diplomas/certificates

You should apply for these programmes via our website. There is an Apply button on each course page which links to the UKPASS system, through which all applications to the IOE are processed.

You can visit programme webpages by clicking on their titles in this handbook.

Undergraduate programmes (BA/BEd and foundation degrees)

Application forms for these programmes are available to download from our website: ioe.ac.uk/study

Credit transfer

We may allow you to transfer credits towards a masters degree. Where this is agreed, the requirements of your intended award will be appropriately reduced.

For more information on credit transfer regulations and the maximum number of credits you can transfer, please contact Information, Advice and Student Support (see above right).

Module Handbook 2011-12

This handbook is best used in conjunction with the Module Handbook 2011-12, which gives full contact contacts, credits, levels and modes for each module.

Please note that the fee for modules within this area of study is higher than for other masters degrees. Students from other areas of study undertaking a module from this area will be charged the higher fee. Optional modules will run on the basis of student choice, and this will also determine the term in which it is offered. Before nominating an optional module from this area, students from other areas of study should check with the Programme Leader regarding availability. Students undertaking modules from this programme are required to have a strong background in higher education management. These modules are run as two-and-a-half or five-day residential workshops either in London or at another UK university venue.

These courses will run in 2012/2013:

- MMAHEM_01 (Higher Education Institutions: Their Strategic Management)
- MMAHEM_16 (The Management of Financial Resources In Higher Education (Part 2))
